

permeated my mind: Could I come up with another 50 in my condition? Was I ready for the ultimate challenge, a 100-mile ultra?

Knowing what I now do, the answer is that you'll never be ready. There's a debut 100-mile event in Vermont on July 30, and I might just be spending my first wedding anniversary there, plugging along looking for a 24-hour finish.

Ultra events aren't really what you prepare for, they're what you are inside. Trail savvy and conservative measures will help you maintain, and in ultra racing, every finisher is a winner. It might only be something that an ultra endurance athlete can understand, but I'm very, very happy about the time I spent on Ice Age Trail. I don't care if my toenails are falling off, or that the guys at work tell me I walk like I have a pole up my butt. All that matters is that I'm back, and ready for summer.
