

Dave Cameron adds:

I worked the 37.2-/43.5-mile aid station. As such, I watched every runner who was still moving come through. With 90° heat during the run after three straight weeks in the 40s and 50s, it was brutal for most runners. I give great respect to all who finished, and to all who knew when to stop. A few reflections:

1. Most runners were smiling despite the heat. Almost all were very courteous to the volunteers, and took the time to thank us for our efforts. I ran across no one with a bad attitude.

2. Seeing Steve Szydlik come through with a freshly broken wrist was inspiring. He was obviously coherent and dealing with it well.

3. Meeting Joe Jurczyk, of Internet fame, was a treat. It was reported that Joe was in a serious accident earlier this year. Joe was dropping out at 37.2, and was very matter-of-fact about it. I'm sure he'll be at full strength soon.

4. Hearing first-timers say this was the farthest they've ever gone — with the look of joy on their face — made it all worthwhile for us. Many of them were respectful of the heat and the distance, but this did not diminish the joy in the least.

5. Having to tell people they missed the cut-off was a very difficult thing to do. I can feel for the runners who missed it. All the runners respected the cut-off — a very mature attitude and an impressive one given the lateness in the race and the obvious determination of all who were asked to stop.
